Language

Language(s) of Instruction

French

Université de Montréal is a French taught institution and almost all courses are held in French.

A minimum B2 level (from the Common European framework) certificate/letter delivered by an accredited institution (home university's Department of Languages, French Alliance, School of Languages, etc.) is required to most programs of study.

Some departments may require a higher level; see below for the list of programs with particular requirements.

French courses: non-francophone students can take one 3-credit French course at our Language School. Students will be charged course materials fees (about 25 $ per credit).

A placement test is mandatory. Information will be sent to students.

Language Pre-requisites Requirement

Comments

Minimum of B1 level of French, B2 and above recommended.

Some departments may require a higher level (see our list of programs with particularities).

OBS! UdeM is very pleased to announce a scholarship opportunity FOR 2020-21 for a LU student who wishes to go to UdeM to improve his/her French language (previous knowledge of French language is required; for example, at gymnasium level).

One term of French language courses during the next academic year. This scholarship allows UdeM to cover tuition fees for one full term of French courses.

French courses are mainly designed for students with a beginner's level of French proficiency (B1 and less).
